The Monday session is from 2:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and Wednesday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There will be breaks for lunch and food and beverages available during the day.

4. What are you looking for in successful applicants?

InterAction is seeking Fellows who demonstrate a passion for foreign affairs, promoting global prosperity, alleviating human suffering globally, a strong sense of curiosity, and a dedication to excellence in their work.

5. What are the goals of the Fellowship?

The InterAction Fellowship Program is designed to give Fellows an in-depth understanding of how international assistance programs are funded and implemented, and the impact of U.S. aid around the world. Through their participation, Fellows will also expand their network on and off Capitol Hill.

6. Why now?

As Congress and the U.S. government (USG) continue to invest billions in development and humanitarian assistance, debates over these programs have sharpened and oversight has deepened. While recent discussions have focused on emergency contexts like Ukraine and Gaza, longer-term development efforts around localization, resilience and adaptation, global health security, and the modalities of aid will have consequences that will shape U.S. development programs for a generation.

Important questions must be asked during these debates: How is foreign assistance part of the broader foreign policy toolbox? How does the U.S. model of foreign assistance differ from both its allies and its foes? How and why do foreign assistance programs succeed and fail? How can assistance reach more people more effectively? How do we balance immediate, life-saving needs with longer-term impacts?

7. What topics will be discussed?

The Fellowship sessions will begin with an overview of assistance programs. The sessions will then shift to an in-depth review of how Congress funds these programs, including an exploration of specific accounts within the State and Foreign Operations appropriations bill; the grant process between USAID, other agencies, and implementing partners; how implementers work with the USG, multilateral institutions, and other institutional donors; and the working relationship between American implementing organizations and those on the ground. The Fellows will gain an understanding of how aid is spent and by whom, and gain a greater understanding of the goals and impacts of foreign assistance programs. There will be opportunities to discuss all the topics.

8. Who are the likely speakers?

Session speakers will include senior USG officials, experts and senior leaders from InterAction's Members, aid workers who have implemented U.S. foreign assistance in the field, as well as former members of Congress and senior staff.

9. Are there other items that will be addressed?

Fellows will participate in exercises designed to increase their understanding of how assistance programs are developed. They will also participate in teambuilding exercises.
